

Now live!

FEMINISTAFRICA.NET

Feminist Africa is pleased to announce the launch of our new website and archive! We are now located at the University of Ghana's Institute of African Studies, home to the continental pan-African intellectual tradition since 1961. With re-collectivized pan-continental leadership and renewed editorial governance structures in place, we have embarked on a bold new transgenerational initiative that is informed and powered a strong, independently governed and self-perpetuating knowledge infrastructure.

FA's new digital knowledge infrastructure will rely on a data base of subscribers to ensure a more inclusive, collaborative and upgraded production process. To leverage FA into the future, we are establishing new partnerships and renewing the Feminist African community. We are therefore inviting all FA users and contributors to join by subscribing online at feministafrica.net if you have not already done so, to join us at this critical global conjuncture.

Please visit the new site, subscribe and to join FA Community of African feminist users and contributors, editors, advisory board and contributors.

Welcome to the Future of Feminist Africa!

A small, square image containing a handwritten signature in black ink, which appears to be "Charmaine".

1 August 2020

On behalf of the

FA Editors Collective: Amina Mama (Nigeria/US), Dzodzi Tsikata (Ghana), Charmaine Pereira (Nigeria), Sylvia Tamale (Uganda), Hope Chigudu (Zimbabwe/Uganda)

Email Contacts for FA Coordinator, Dzifa Torvikey

info@feministafrica.net

contact@feministafrica.net

