

Contributors

Adedoyin Aguru

Adedoyin Aguru graduated in International Relations, English Studies and Comparative Studies from Obafemi Awolowo University, University of Ibadan and University of Ilorin. She was a visiting scholar at the Arts Research Centre, Ritsumeikan University, Kyoto, Japan in 2007. Her research efforts span gender related discourses, comparative literary studies, studies in national and cultural identity, and comparative studies in Nigerian and Japanese theatre. A playwright, Aguru lectured in the Department of English and Performing Arts, Olabisi Onabanjo University for over a decade and presently lectures at the English Department, University of Ibadan. She is currently President of the African Association for Japanese Studies.

Títílope F. Ajáyí

Títílope F. Ajáyí is a self-styled pracademic with expertise in gender, peace and security. Over the past 15 years, she has conducted research and advocacy in these areas with a focus on Africa. Her current work centres on women and terror in Africa, the intersections of national and global frameworks on women, peace and security, and gendered constructions of victimhood in the Boko Haram conflict. Ajáyí's previous experience includes research positions with International Crisis Group and consultancies for UN Women. She is currently nearing completion of a PhD in International Affairs at the University of Ghana, studying gender and activism within the Boko Haram conflict. Her article, "Women, Internal Displacement and the Boko Haram Conflict: Broadening the Debate", was published in African Security in March 2020.

Donna Andrews

Donna Andrews is a researcher in the area of capitalism and nature. She convenes the Southern African Rural Women's Assembly Feminist Schools, serves as a juror for the Permanent People's Tribunal, and is a member of the feminist Rita Edwards Collective, Joburg Feminist Circle and Southern African Feminist Economics Fridays initiative. For over a decade, she was active on trade issues in Southern Africa and worked for the Jubilee South Debt Movement. Andrews is a research associate with the Department of Anthropology and Development Studies, University of Johannesburg. Prior to this, she was with the Critical Food Studies Programme, University of the Western Cape, where she explored the political economy and philosophical implications of food in the context of social subjects' relations to nature.

Abiodun Baiyewu

Abiodun Baiyewu is the Executive Director of Global Rights, a non-governmental organisation whose work covers themes such as Access to Remedies, Women's Rights, Natural Resource Governance, Civic Space Strengthening, and Security and Human Rights. Her work focuses on programmes addressing governance failures which exacerbate the disenfranchisement and violation of the rights of the poor, marginalised women, and victims of discrimination. Baiyewu is the Co-Chair of the Steering Committee of the African Coalition for Corporate Accountability—a coalition of more than 130 organisations across 30 African countries. She is Chair of the Justice & Empowerment Initiative and a member of the governing boards of Annies' Place, Srarina Initiative, Workforce, WEEVO, and the Initiative for Participation and Inclusive Development.

Isabel Casimiro

Isabel Casimiro is a researcher at the Centre of African Studies, Eduardo Mondlane University, Mozambique, currently teaching and directing the Department of Development Studies and Gender. She co-founded Women and Law in Southern Africa Research and Education Trust, WLSA in 1988 and Fórum Mulher in 1993. From 1995 to 1999, she was a Member of Parliament on behalf of the Frelimo party. Casimiro has been President of the Council for the Development of Social Science Research in Africa (CODESRIA) since 2018. Her books include “Peace on Earth, War at Home”: Feminism and Women's Organizations in Mozambique (2004), reedited in Brazil, Universidade Federal de Pernambuco (2014) and African Women's Movements: Changing Political Landscapes (2009), co-authored with Aili Mari Tripp, Joy Kwesiga and Alice Mungwa.

Teresa Cunha

Teresa Cunha is a senior researcher at the Centre for Social Studies at the University of Coimbra where she lectures in several PhD Courses and co-coordinates the publication “Oficina do CES”, the Gender Workshop Series, and the Research Programme “Epistemologies of the South”. She also coordinates the Advanced School “Feminist Ecologies of Knowledges”. Cunha is an associate professor at the College of Education of the Polytechnic College Coimbra and an associate researcher at the Council for the Development of Social Science Research in Africa (CODESRIA) and the Centre for African Studies at Eduardo Mondlane University, Mozambique. Her research interests are feminisms and postcolonialisms; feminist economies and women’s economies; post-war transition, peace and memories; and women’s human rights in the Indian Ocean space.

Nzira de Deus

Nzira de Deus is a feminist activist and women’s rights defender. She has a degree in international relations and diplomacy with a specialisation in gender studies. She is executive director of Fórum Mulher Mozambique—the national network of 80 organisations that advocate for gender policies and legislation on women’s rights. De Deus is also the national coordinator within the global feminist movement, The World March of Women (WMW). She is passionate about the mass mobilisation of women in efforts to dismantle the patriarchal system, overcome the oppression of women, and eradicate violence against women.

Marianna Fernandes

Marianna Fernandes is an activist working within the World March of Women. She is currently pursuing her PhD in Geography at the University of Lausanne. As a researcher and activist, she works on topics at the intersection of feminism, anti-capitalism and political ecology. You can reach her by writing to marian-nafsb@gmail.com

Samantha Hargreaves

Samantha Hargreaves is an African ecofeminist activist with three decades of experience on the land, agrarian and extractives terrain. She has worked as a field worker, researcher, campaigner, strategist and programme manager in local, South African, African and international organisations. She has also consistently volunteered her time and skills to movements, solidarity efforts, campaigns and support organisations working on violence against women. She is the founder of WoMin, which was launched in late 2013, and currently serves as its Director. She has a Masters in Development Studies from University of the Witwatersrand, South Africa.

Shireen Hassim

Shireen Hassim is Canada 150 Research Chair in Gender and African Studies at Carleton University, Ottawa, and Visiting Professor, Wits Institute for Social and Economic Research (WiSER), Wits University. She has written and edited several books, including No Shortcuts to Power: Women and Policymaking in Africa, and Go Home or Die Here: Violence, Xenophobia and the Politics of Difference in South Africa. Women's Organisations and Democracy: Contesting Authority won the Victoria Shuck Award for Best Book in Women and Politics from the American Political Science Association. Her interests lie in feminist theory and politics, collective action and histories of mobilisation of women, and social policies and gender. Her most recent book was an archival recuperation of the work of the South African sociologist, Fatima Meer.

Margaret Mapondera

Margaret Mapondera is a feminist who has supported movements across Southern Africa and around the world for over seven years, facilitating creative ways to document human experience as well as struggles for justice. Before coming to WoMin, she worked at Just Associates (JASS), a global feminist movement building organisation committed to amplifying the voice and visibility of women human rights defenders and their movements worldwide. Mapondera graduated from Yale with a BA in Comparative Literature, focusing on African literatures and African Studies.

Charmaine Pereira

Charmaine Pereira is a feminist scholar-activist living and working in Abuja, Nigeria. She is a member of the editorial collective of Feminist Africa. Pereira edited FA Special Issue 22 on the theme of "Feminists Organising – Strategy, Voice, Power." Her research and writing addresses themes such as feminist thought and practice, the gender and sexual politics of violence, women organising and the state. She is the author of Gender in the Making of the Nigerian University System (James Currey/Partnership for Higher Education in Africa, 2007) and editor of Changing Narratives of Sexuality: Contestations, Compliance and Women's Empowerment (Zed, 2014).

Gertrude Dzifa Torvikey

Gertrude Dzifa Torvikey holds a PhD in Development Studies from the Institute of Statistical, Social and Economic Research (ISSER), University of Ghana. She is the Programme Officer for Feminist Africa and had previously worked at the Centre for Gender Studies and Advocacy (CEGENSA), University of Ghana.

Dzodzi Tsikata

Dzodzi Tsikata is Professor of Development Sociology and Director of the Institute of African Studies (IAS) at the University of Ghana. She is a member of the editorial collectives of Feminist Africa and Agrarian South: Journal of Political Economy.